FOREWORD

One of the important purposes and functions of the National Clearinghouse for Bilingual Education and of the Dissemination and Assessment Center for Bilingual Education is to identify information gaps in our field of interest and concern. Having once identified such gaps, we strive to fill them as promptly and as successfully as possible.

So it is with pride that we present this publication, which indeed fills a glaring gap and fulfills a pressing need. This bibliography was developed at Texas A&I University in Kingsville, edited at the Dissemination and Assessment Center for Bilingual Education in Austin, and printed under the auspices of the National Clearinghouse for Bilingual Education in Rosslyn, Virginia. Many people have combined their efforts and talents to produce it; many people will benefit from its contribution to the field.

INTRODUCTION

This bibliography is the result of many months of analysis, search, review, and indexing. It represents the first contribution of the Bilingual Education Center at Texas A&I University to the growing body of literature related to the education of the Mexican American. Access to research sources in this topic has been, for the last ten years, a needed dimension in this country. Legislative and judicial landmarks have been made on the basis of research studies which pointed out very clearly the need for improvement of the educational delivery system. The impact of the new legislation and court decisions broke down many social and financial barriers to educational opportunity. Special programs for the Mexican American and other minorities began to proliferate and emphasize a better type of education that became a refreshing aspect of the cultural milieu of the seventies.

It is not necessary to point out the vital role that research has played in the new educational world of the Mexican American. It can safely be said that a substantial number of topics have been investigated, and a new generation of Mexican American researchers have given time and effort to finding solutions to many of the problems they themselves encountered on their way to the top of the academic ladder. Mexican American researchers have not been the only ones interested, by any means. Interest in the Mexican American child has not been bound by color or ethnic background, as this bibliography amply shows.

The research has been done. The availability of the research, as an integrated whole, is a different matter. It is possible to check ERIC or the Education Index under the heading "Mexican American" and find articles in education about this minority. However, it is more difficult to find a compilation taxonomically structured that encompasses the most significant educational aspects of the available research on the Mexican American child and his education. This work attempts to do just that for the benefit of scholars both trained and "hopeful." This bibliography offers a meaningful conceptual framework for many studies in many closely related disciplines.

Under normal circumstances no one person can be expected to deal with the literature as it exists today. It is too extensive, too widely distributed among several academic areas, and, at times, it is of doubtful significance or quality. It is hoped that a bibliography such as this one will fill a void that exists at this time in the education of the Mexican American.

The term "Mexican American" is used here to designate an American child of Mexican ancestry. In this sense, the terms "Mexican American" and "Chicano" may be used interchangeably except by those who separate the two terms on the basis of social ideology, political affiliation, or cultural identity.

Purpose

This bibliography has been compiled for the benefit of the inquisitive mind who may ask one or more of the following questions:

- (1) What has been written on the education of the Mexican American?
- (2) Which authors have done research in this field?
- (3) What do the laws and the courts say?

- (4) What will a chronological study of the field show?
- (5) What topics have been studied more than others?
- (6) How can the multitude of the topics (both directly related and tangential) be incorporated into a meaningful conceptual framework?

It is the purpose of this work to help a researcher find answers to these questions. The bibliography has been written with the prospective user in mind, and, hopefully, it offers sufficiently full and accurate bibliographic entries to permit the user the location of any desired item.

Scope

The scope of the bibliography is multiple. It deals with books, monographs, journals, government documents both federal and state, federal laws and federal court decisions, doctoral dissertations and master's theses. It incorporates ERIC entries. It covers significant works from 1896 to 1976. It is centered on the education of the Mexican American child (or adult) as an only topic, but, by necessity, it must cover the demographic, legal, sociocultural, and linguistic determinants of such education. History is incorporated only if it is educational history or if the work is of particular significance and directly related to the education of the Mexican American. The same criterion applies to other sciences and disciplines.

This is a specialized bibliography, including only works directly related to the education of the Mexican American and excluding works on foreign-language methodology or general works on bilingual education. It is arranged into topics of particular significance to the researcher. It includes a substantial number of dissertations and master's theses and significant early-century works seldom cited. It allows for a chronological treatment of themes within topics and subtopics.

Limitations

Due to limitations of time and funds, the following have not been researched and are therefore not a part of this bibliography: (1) book reviews; (2) newspapers; (3) curriculum guides; (4) state laws; (5) state court decisions; (6) testing instruments; (7) publishers' catalogs; (8) textbooks; (9) printed educational materials; and (10) nonprinted educational media such as records, films, filmstrips, slides, tapes, etc. It has been the authors' thought that other bibliographies cover a majority of these items and further coverage is uneconomical. Since the purpose of the bibliography is to collect entries related to the education of the Mexican American, special emphasis has been placed on research studies, while little or no emphasis has been given to materials used in classrooms where Mexican Americans are taught. This is primarily a research bibliography and not a sourcebook for curriculum materials.

Selection of Entries

Five principles have guided the selection process of entries throughout this work.

(1) Availability. Only items which were judged to be available to a fairly enterprising researcher were included. Reports and monographs by school districts, university departments, or local agencies not otherwise duplicated or distributed were considered not readily available within the meaning of this principle.

(2) Relevancy. Only works directly related to the Mexican American student or, if tangential, possessing a substantial degree of relatedness to the student's education were incorporated. Monographs or books were included only if a substantial or significant portion was directly related. In this sense, a book on bilingual education may or may not be found to be directly related to the Mexican American. Authors of and works on Chicano literature have been regrettably left out unless the work itself dealt with education. While sociological studies which deal with the Mexican American are not per se a part of this bibliography, those studies which bear more significantly upon education are.

(3) Completeness. Only entries for which complete bibliographic notation was available were included.

(4) Length. Journalistic narratives or one or two pages from journals such as Time, Newsweek, or Reader's Digest have been left out. The criterion of length was not applied to articles appearing in national or state professional journals.

(5) Objectivity. No efforts were made to disregard any point of view no matter how extreme it was.

Examination of Entries

Approximately 90 percent of all entries have been checked for accuracy against original sources by the authors and their staff.

Bibliographies Searched

Nearly 170 bibliographies on Mexican Americans were searched for materials directly relevant to education. The first bibliographies were published in 1934 and 1935. After these, nine were published in the 40s, five in the 50s, fifty-two in the 60s, and one hundred in the 70s. While some are quite comprehensive in scope (Pino), others (ERIC bibliographies) are merely photocopies of notations on articles and monographs found in the ERIC ED-microfiche collection under the descriptor "Mexican American."

Organization

This bibliography is organized under a subject-matter arrangement that, hopefully, will offer readers a meaningful conceptual framework for the literature available. The field is divided into ten basic topics, most of which are broken down into a system of subtopics as shown on the Table of Topical Arrangement. The reader should make every effort to study the topical arrangement and internalize it before attempting to study the bibliographic entries.

The entries under each heading are in chronological rather than alphabetical order but are alphabetized within the same year.

Authenticity

The authors have taken the position that entries should be incorporated exactly as they appear in the sources themselves. Therefore, no diacritical marks (acentos; diéresis) have been added unless they are found in the original source. Apparent spelling errors or semantic obscurities have been left untouched for the same reason. It was felt that the purpose of a bibliographer was to record exactly what was found and not to amend it in order to conform to established grammatical principles.

Acknowledgements

Many deserve special mention and expression of gratitude. Ms. Magdalena Benavides Sumpter, Bilingual Curriculum Editor of the National Dissemination and Assessment Center for Bilingual Education, spent many hours carefully editing the complete manuscript and suggesting numerous improvements. The authors are indeed grateful to her untiring dedication to the project. Dr. R. R. Hinojosa-Smith offered comments and suggestions that considerably improved this work. Mrs. Monica Muchetti acted as an administrative assistant and coordinator throughout the typing and editing phases. Her unrelenting drive and passion for accuracy were invaluable to the successful completion of the bibliography. Miss Carolyn Lynch is due special recognition for important contributions to all aspects of this work. Miss Anna Belle Buentello gave generously of her time and effort in the final editing of the manuscript. The authors also wish to express their appreciation to the various university libraries and their staffs who provided much help in tracking down difficult-to-obtain documents and monographs. And last but not least, our most sincere gratitude to Dr. Julie Bichteler, Graduate School of Library Science, University of Texas at Austin, and to Dr. Hensley C. Woodbridge, Department of Foreign Languages, Southern Illinois University, for their professional assistance and guidance.
